This directory was last updated in April 2017 and was accurate at the time of publishing. We recommend using it electronically rather than printing copies.

It will be updated regularly by the Community Safety’s Domestic Violence & Hate Crime Team, however please do check that details are correct before giving out to service users. Please email any amendments to domestic.violence@towerhamlets.gov.uk if you become aware of any detail that is no longer valid.
This resource pack has been put together by the Community Safety’s Domestic Violence & Hate crime Team in Tower Hamlets. It aims to assist practitioners working with those experiencing domestic violence & abuse and ensures that victims/survivors can easily access specialist services related to individual needs.

Domestic violence and abuse is a gendered crime which is deeply rooted in the societal inequality between women and men.

Whilst anyone can suffer domestic violence & abuse, women are more likely than men to experience multiple incidents of abuse, different types of domestic abuse (intimate partner violence, sexual assault and stalking) and in particular sexual violence. Anyone can experience domestic abuse regardless of race, ethnic or religious group, sexuality, class, or disability, but some women who experience other forms of oppression and discrimination may face further barriers to disclosing abuse and finding help.

Domestic abuse exists as part of violence against women and girls (VAWG); which also includes different forms of family violence such as forced marriage, female genital mutilation and so called “honour crimes” that are perpetrated primarily by family members, often with multiple perpetrators.¹

Domestic abuse can also take place in lesbian, gay, bi-sexual and transgender relationships, and can involve other family members, including children.

We know that domestic abuse is complex and that families experiencing violence have a wide range of needs which change over time from crisis support and protection, to rehousing and services to help rebuild their lives. Some of these needs can be met by specialist domestic violence services, others by mainstream statutory agencies or by targeted community based provision. We all have a role to play in providing a safe response to victims. Knowing what services are available as well as how to access them is vital.

Please note that details for specialist services change on a regular basis due to insecure and uncertain funding streams so do check that details are correct before giving out to service users.

Violence against Women and Girls (VAWG) is both a form of discrimination and a violation of human rights. Locally, we have adopted the United Nations Declaration on Elimination of all forms of violence towards women, which defines violence against women as:

Any act of gender based violence that results in or is likely to result in physical, sexual or psychological harm or suffering to women [or girls], including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty.

United Nations Declaration on the Elimination on Violence towards Women (1993, Article 1)

Violence against Women and Girls includes violence that is targeted at women or girls because of their gender or affects women and girls disproportionately. The types of violence included in our VAWG Strategy are:

- Sexual Violence
- Domestic Violence & Abuse
- Trafficking
- Prostitution
- Child Sexual Exploitation including in a gang context
- Female Genital Mutilation (FGM)
- Forced Marriage
- So-called ‘Honour’ Based Violence
- Dowry Related Abuse
- Stalking and Harassment

What about men?
We recognise that men also experience this type of violence and abuse and anyone presenting will be supported regardless of gender, sex, sexual orientation, age, disability, religion/belief, race, marital status or for any other reason.

More information about the work in Tower Hamlets and services to tackle VAWG, including the latest strategy (2016-2019) can be found at the Tower Hamlets Council website’s VAWG page. Alternatively you can visit www.towerhamlets.gov.uk and search for VAWG.

The cross-government definition of domestic violence and abuse is:

“...any incident or pattern of incidents of controlling, coercive, threatening behaviour, violence or abuse between those aged 16 or over who are, or have been, intimate partners or family members regardless of gender or sexuality. The abuse can encompass, but is not limited to”:

• Psychological
• Physical • Sexual • Financial • Emotional

Family members are defined as mother, father, son daughter, brother, sister and grandparents, whether directly related, in laws or stepfamily. This definition includes ‘honour’ based violence, forced marriage and other gender based violence.

Please refer to the Power & Control Wheel\(^2\) in appendix 2 on page \(54\) that further illustrates examples of abuse.

Controlling behaviour is a range of acts designed to make a person subordinate and/or dependent by isolating them from sources of support, exploiting their resources and capacities for personal gain, depriving them of the means needed for independence, resistance and escape and regulating their everyday behaviour.

Coercive behaviour is an act or a pattern of acts of assault, threats, humiliation and intimidation or other abuse that is used to harm, punish, or frighten their victim.

Coercive or controlling behaviour offence

A coercive or controlling behaviour offence came into force in December 2015. It carries a maximum 5 years’ imprisonment, a fine or both. Victims who experience coercive and controlling behaviour that stops short of serious physical violence, but amounts to extreme psychological and emotional abuse, can bring their perpetrators to justice. The offence closes a gap in the law around patterns of controlling or coercive behaviour that occurs during a relationship between intimate partners, former partners who still live together or family members.

Domestic violence disclosure scheme

From 8 March 2014, the domestic violence disclosure scheme was implemented across England and Wales. This scheme is also known as Clare’s Law.

Right to ask means an individual can ask police to check whether a new or existing partner has a violent past. This is the ‘right to ask’. If records show that an individual may be at risk of domestic violence from a partner, the police will consider disclosing the information. A disclosure can be made if it is legal, proportionate and necessary to do so.

Right to know enables an agency to apply for a disclosure if the agency believes that an individual is at risk of domestic violence from their partner. Again, the police can release information if it is lawful, necessary and proportionate to do so.\(^3\)

1. Receive
✓ Create a safe space – speak in privacy
✓ Listen to what she/he is saying
✓ Try not to interrupt or ask lots of questions
✓ Don’t worry if they stop talking – silences are ok
✓ Explain confidentiality - they need to know what will actually happen and that you have a duty of care. They will appreciate your honesty and transparency

2. Reassure
✓ Affirm, validate and believe
✓ Do tell them immediately that you believe them
✓ Take it seriously – remember how difficult it is to disclose DV and ask for help.
✓ Remember to be non-judgemental – they should not feel that they are being pressurised or judged by people they approach for help even if they have made a previous decision to return to or take back their violent partner.
✓ Contain your own feelings. It’s important not to look shocked or horrified as this may reinforce feelings of shame
✓ Acknowledge their trust in disclosing to you and highlight their courage and strength in taking the positive steps to getting support
✓ Try not to criticise the abuser(s)

3. Respond
✓ Be sensitive to their needs – offer a worker of the same gender and ethnicity if possible
✓ Help them make their own decisions and when presented with options, empower them to make their own choices - don’t take over
✓ Offer appropriate referrals for support and signpost or refer as client wishes
✓ Ensure that they are aware of who you are going to tell
✓ Feedback what they say (mirroring) if you need to respond
✓ Stress to them that the abuse is not their fault and that no-one deserves to be abused, no matter what they do
✓ Don’t forget to ask for help if you need support
✓ Prioritise safety – This could be their one chance to get help. Do they have somewhere safe to stay? Help them to plan how they will keep safe.
✓ Know your safeguarding duty – have you made appropriate safeguarding referrals? Are there matters of national security to consider?

Female genital mutilation (FGM) is a procedure where the female genitals are deliberately cut, injured or changed, with no medical reason for this to be done. It’s also known as "female circumcision" or "cutting", and by other terms such as sunna, gudniin, halalays, tahur, megrez and khitan, among others. It is usually carried out on young girls between infancy and the age of 15, most commonly before puberty starts. It's very painful and can seriously harm the health of women and girls. It can also cause long-term problems with sex, childbirth and mental health.

FGM has been a criminal offence in the UK since 1985. Anyone found guilty of the offence faces a maximum penalty of 14 years in prison. In 2003 it also became a criminal offence for UK nationals or permanent UK residents to take their child abroad for female genital mutilation and in 2015 more amendments to the Serious Crime Act came in to force to further protect individuals. This included the introduction of FGM Protection Orders (FGM PO) as well as the mandatory duty on regulated health and social care professionals and teachers in England and Wales to report ‘known’ cases of FGM in under 18s to the police.

An FGM PO is a civil measure which can be applied for through a family court. The FGM PO offers the means of protecting actual or potential victims from FGM under the civil law. Breach of an FGM PO is a criminal offence carrying a sentence of up to five years in prison. As an alternative to criminal prosecution, a breach could be dealt with in the family court as a contempt of court, carrying a maximum of two years’ imprisonment.

Who can apply for an order?
- The person who is to be protected by the order
- a relevant third party (such as the local authority); or
- any other person with the permission of the court (for example, teachers, health care professionals, police, family member).

FGM POs are unique to each case and contain legally binding conditions, prohibitions and restrictions to protect the person at risk of FGM. The court can make an order in an emergency so that protection is in place straightaway.

‘Honour’ based violence is a term used to describe violence committed against a woman or a girl (or sometimes men) who the family or the community feels has not followed what they believe is acceptable behaviour and has brought dishonour or shame to the family.

Forced Marriage
A forced marriage is where one or both people do not (or in cases of people with learning disabilities, cannot) consent to the marriage and pressure or abuse is used. It is an appalling and indefensible practice and is recognised in the UK as a form of violence against women and men, domestic/child abuse and a serious abuse of human rights.

The pressure put on people to marry against their will can be physical (including threats, actual physical violence and sexual violence) or emotional and psychological (for example, when someone is made to feel like they’re bringing shame on their family). Financial abuse (taking your wages or not giving you any money) can also be a factor.

The Anti-social Behaviour, Crime and Policing Act 2014 saw the introduction of Forced Marriage Protection Orders and makes it a criminal offence to force someone to marry. This includes:

- Taking someone overseas to force them to marry (whether or not the forced marriage takes place)
- Marrying someone who lacks the mental capacity to consent to the marriage (whether they’re pressured to or not)
- Breaching a Forced Marriage Protection Order is also a criminal offence
- The civil remedy of obtaining a Forced Marriage Protection Order through the family courts will continue to exist alongside the criminal offence, so victims can choose how they wish to be assisted

Forcing someone to marry can result in a sentence of up to 7 years in prison
Disobeying a Forced Marriage Protection Order can result in a sentence of up to 5 years in prison

Forced Marriage Unit (FMU) can be contacted if you’re trying to stop a forced marriage or if you need help supporting someone to leave a forced marriage. The assistance provided ranges from simple safety advice, through to aiding a victim to prevent their unwanted spouse moving to the UK (‘reluctant sponsor’ cases), and, in extreme circumstances, to rescues of victims held against their will overseas.

Dowry Related Abuse is “any act of violence or harassment associated with the giving or receiving of dowry at any time before, during or after the marriage.”

Dowry-related violence is often associated with the wider family but takes the form of domestic abuse and can include all forms of violence including: domestic violence, sexual violence, acid throwing, burning and other forms of violence. In extreme cases it involves murders which are often masked by the perpetrators as suicides or accidents. Dowry abuse has been particularly noted when a husband or his family believe the dowry to be inadequate or where the dowry has not been paid.

A sexual assault is any sexual act that a person is forced into against their will. It is a form of sexual violence and includes rape or other sexual offences, such as groping, forced kissing, child sexual abuse or the torture of a person in a sexual manner. Stalking is a pattern of repeated and persistent unwanted behaviour that is intrusive and engenders fear, it is when one person becomes fixated or obsessed with another and the attention is unwanted. Threats may not be made but victims may still feel scared. Importantly threats are not required for the criminal offence of stalking to be prosecuted.

Stalking & harassment are similar and so have traditionally been considered together in legislation although new stalking offences were created in 2012 to bring stalking within the ambit of the harassment legislation. As of November 2012, amendments to the Protection from Harassment Act under Section 111 of the Protection of Freedoms Act 2012, made stalking a criminal offence.

Stalking has a strong correlation with murders of women by their current or former partner with studies showing that almost 70% of murder or attempted murder victims were also victims of stalking whilst in the relationship

Trafficking and modern slavery are abuse and apply to those who are recruited, moved or transported and then exploited, forced to work or sold. People, including children can be trafficked into the UK from abroad, but they can also be trafficked from one part of the UK to another. This is a particular issue that affects young people in Tower Hamlets who may be trafficked for the purposes of child sexual exploitation.

National Referral Mechanism (NRM) is a framework for identifying victims of human trafficking or modern slavery and ensuring they receive the appropriate support. To be referred to the NRM, potential victims of trafficking or modern slavery must first be referred to one of the UK’s two competent authorities. This initial referral will generally be handled by an authorised agency such as a police force, the National Crime Agency, the UK Border Force, Social Services or certain NGO’s.

For more information on the National Referral Mechanism, trafficking & modern slavery click here or visit www.gov.uk and search for ‘modern slavery referral’.

Child Trafficking Advice Centre (CTAC) provides free guidance and training to professionals concerned that a child or young person has been or is about to be trafficked into or out of the UK.

Child Sexual Exploitation

Child sexual exploitation (CSE) is a form of sexual abuse whereby young people are either manipulated (‘groomed’) or coerced into sexual activity in exchange for things such as money, gifts, accommodation, affection or status.

The ‘grooming’ process involves befriending children, gaining their trust, and often feeding them drugs and alcohol, sometimes over a long period of time, before the abuse begins.

The abusive relationship between victim and perpetrator involves an imbalance of power which limits the victim’s options. It is a form of abuse which is often misunderstood by victims and outsiders as consensual. Although it is true that the victim can be tricked into believing they are in a loving relationship, no child under the age of 18 can ever consent to being abused or exploited.\(^9\)

For further information click here or visit www.gov.uk and search child sexual exploitation. For further help on recognising signs of CSE, please see page 55.

Legislation across the UK has struggled to keep up with the rapid developments in online technology. Old laws are being stretched to fit new online offending behaviour. There is no specific law in the UK that makes cyberbullying illegal, but existing legislation to stop harassment or threatening behaviour can be applied to cases of cyberbullying.

If an individual is under 18 and sends, uploads or forwards indecent images or videos onto friends or boyfriends/girlfriends, this would be breaking the law, even if they are photos of themselves (“selfies”).

"Revenge Porn" is a term used to describe sexually explicit media that is publicly shared online without the consent of the pictured individual. Section 33 of the Criminal Justice and Courts Act 2015 makes it an offence to disclose private sexual photographs and films without the consent of the individual depicted and with the intent to cause distress. The offence applies both online and offline and to images which are shared electronically or in a more traditional way so includes the uploading of images on the internet, sharing by text and e-mail, or showing someone a physical or electronic image.

Revenge Porn Helpline offers free, confidential advice and support. Whilst they cannot guarantee removal of all images online, they have partnerships with internet industry partners that allow them to minimise the reach, and some of the harm caused by revenge porn.

Research shows that domestic violence is a deeply gendered issue that disproportionately affects women but men can also be victims. They can also be victims of other forms of abuse such as forced marriage, CSE or trafficking.

Male victims may find it hard to report the abuse, as there is still stigma that this will brand them as not a ‘real man’. They may also fear that they won’t be believed and that there is no support for them. They may be unsure of their rights and where they stand legally.

Data from Home Office statistical bulletins and the British Crime Survey show that men made up about 40% of domestic violence victims each year between 2004-05 and 2008-09. It also shows that around one in six men (16%) had experienced domestic abuse since the age of 16. Additionally, in 2016 the Forced Marriage Unit gave support and advice related to a forced marriage to 283 male victims (20% of the total).

Men's Advice Line is a confidential helpline for any man experiencing domestic violence and abuse from a partner or ex-partner. It is understood that domestic violence occurs in the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) community with the same amount of frequency and severity as in the heterosexual community. LGBT domestic violence is vastly underreported, unacknowledged, and often reported as something other than domestic violence. People with Disabilities

People with a disability have just as much right to be protected from domestic violence as anyone else. They may however need some additional assistance because of their disability to help them access services. A review by Public Health England in 2015 confirmed that people with disabilities are more vulnerable to domestic violence and will often face additional difficulties in attempting to access support. According to research by Women's Aid, almost one in two women with a disability will be abused in their lifetime, be it at the hands of their partner, family, or carer.

Clients can apply to any council’s housing department as a homeless person if they can't stay in their home, for instance in cases of domestic violence. The council has to give them advice about finding somewhere to live. Some people are entitled to emergency accommodation, e.g. if they are pregnant, have dependent children living with them, or are considered to be vulnerable. In most cases they will not be referred back to an area where they may be considered at risk.

The Council has to decide if they have a duty to find the client somewhere to live and will ask them to provide details of their situation. They may be asked for supporting evidence, which could include details and dates of incidents. Any temporary accommodation provided must be suitable and this includes taking into account the location, but it may be in a different area.

Tower Hamlets Housing Options Team can assist clients who are at risk of being made homeless. They can offer advice and assistance to victims of domestic violence who may need help with accommodation. The service is completely confidential and interviews take place in private. They will try to ensure that clients are seen by an officer of the same gender and will provide translation where needed.

Research shows that women who experience DV are 15 times more likely to have alcohol dependency and 9 times more likely to have a drug problem than women not experiencing domestic violence. Rates of misuse of both increase after the first violent episode.\textsuperscript{10} Additionally, Gilchrist et al. Home Office findings, researching the characteristics of domestic violence offenders, found that 73\% of perpetrators had been drinking at the time of the assault. On average, 90\% of repeat referrals to the local Multi-Agency Risk Assessment Conference involve substance misuse & mental health.

Whilst there is evidence that alcohol use by perpetrators, and to a lesser extent by victims, increases the frequency of violence and the seriousness of the outcomes, this does not mean that alcohol use causes domestic abuse. It is neither an excuse nor an explanation.

Domestic Violence and Hate Crime Team Profile

The Domestic Violence and Hate Crime Team (DVHCT) is based within the Community Safety Team of which there are various elements. These include: Community Safety Partnership Team, Prevent, Hate Crime, VAWG & DV. The team supports the development of co-ordinated community responses to VAWG, DV and hate crime and this feeds into the work of the overarching Community Safety Partnership (CSP). There is a focus on prevention and reducing the harm that these crimes cause to individuals, families and the community as a whole.

You can find out more about the work of the CSP by clicking here or by visiting the website and searching for Community Safety Partnership.

The DVHC team’s work includes:

Partnership support and joint-working

- The Domestic Violence Forum: an inclusive forum for networking, consultation and information sharing about DV issues. The Forum meets 4 times a year and membership is open to any organisation working in the borough.

- The Tower Hamlets Multi Agency Risk Assessment Conference (MARAC): Key staff from the Police, Housing Options, Children’s Social Care, Health, National Probation Service, Community Rehabilitation Company, Victim Support, Drug/Alcohol Services, Mental Health and Education services meets bi-monthly to review and action plan for identified high risk cases. The Conference has a priority focus on current risk to victims with links to child protection and multi-agency protection arrangements, (MAPPA) for violent and dangerous offenders. To make a referral or to find out more information contact the DVHCT at domestic.violence@towerhamlets.gov.uk

- DV1 Inter-Agency Referral Form and DV Database: the team has worked with partners over several years to develop a single monitoring and referral form to evidence domestic abuse. Designed to support an initial assessment, the form includes information on service needs and risk factors and reduces the need for victims to repeat the same information to different professionals. Should you require a copy, please contact the DVHCT at domestic.violence@towerhamlets.gov.uk

- Domestic Violence One Stop Shop: Key members of staff from the Community Safety Unit (Police), LBTH DVHCT, Housing Options, Victim Support Tower Hamlets and a solicitor are present every Thursday from 9.30am – 12.30pm at Idea Store Whitechapel, (321 Whitechapel Road, London, E1 1BU) to provide advice, information and signpost victims of domestic abuse to appropriate specialist support services.
• Barkantine DV Drop in Service: A member of staff from LBTH DVHCT is available at the Barkantine GP Surgery, 121 Westferry Road, London, Greater London E14 8JH every Friday from 10am to 1pm to provide advice and information to victims of domestic abuse and VAWG.

• Housing Options DV Support: A member of staff from LBTH DVHCT is co-located at Housing Options, 62 Roman Road, London E2 0PG every Monday from 10am to 4pm to support staff with dealing with clients’ disclosures of DV & VAWG.

• Specialist Domestic Violence Court Steering Group Meeting: Multi-partnership group that monitors compliance with protocols and finds ways to address any arising problems from the process, reviews data collection and analysis/identification of trends etc. The meeting shares information to increase the safety, health and wellbeing of adult and child victims of domestic violence and contributes to the development of best practice. The Specialist Domestic Violence Court project has increased victim satisfaction within the Criminal Justice Process and as well as decreasing unsuccessful prosecutions.

• VAWG Steering Group: This multi-agency meeting ensures accountability on the part of members and other participating agencies towards Tower Hamlets’ Violence against Women and Girls Action Plan. It provides strategic overview of all of the VAWG work within Tower Hamlets and, specifically, across the core objectives within the VAWG Action Plan.

• Tower Hamlets No Place for Hate Forum (NPFHF): A quarterly multi-agency forum which develops and implements the borough’s hate crime strategy, ensuring support and protection for victims as well as bringing offenders to justice. It also raises awareness to promote community cohesion. The Forum develops best practice responses to tackling hate crime.

• Hate Incidents Panel (HIP): Key staff from the Police, Housing Associations, Victim Support and various departments from within the Council meet monthly to ensure a coordinated response to hate incidents.

Service and policy development

Individuals and families experiencing domestic violence and hate crime have wide-ranging needs. Developing effective responses to meet these changing needs involves working with mainstream service providers to review and improve their policies and procedures on DV and HC, and developing new services to meet identified needs. Examples of this work include:

• Violence against Women and Girls Strategy (VAWG): Tower Hamlets revised and updated its VAWG Strategy in December 2016 and feeds into the VAWG Action Plan. This builds on the work of the DV Team by also focussing on other violence that affects women predominantly including: sexual violence, stalking, female genital mutilation and forced marriage. The VAWG Strategy Manager is responsible for working with all agencies, statutory and voluntary, across the borough to facilitate partnership working and develop tangible outcomes to develop Tower Hamlets’ approach to VAWG. The idea behind the Plan, and the work of the DVHCT is to ensure that there is a comprehensive, multi-agency approach to tackling VAWG in the borough across four key areas: Developing further understanding of how all types of violence impact Women and Girls in Tower Hamlets; prevention of VAWG through awareness raising and campaigns; Ensuring victims have access to specialist support & protection and holding perpetrators accountable for their actions.
Violence Against Women and Girls Training: A free multiagency training programme for professionals from the statutory, voluntary and community sectors to identify and respond effectively and appropriately to issues relating to VAWG. Courses cover: FGM, Sexual Violence, Harmful traditional practices, child sexual exploitation, domestic violence, prostitution, stalking and harassment. Specialist Domestic Violence Court (SDVC) & SDVC Coordinator: The SDVC at Thames and Stratford Magistrates’ Court launched in October 2009 and deals with cases arising from the London Boroughs of Tower Hamlets, Hackney, Newham and Waltham Forest. The SDVC Coordinator is responsible for coordinating the SDVC for Tower Hamlets and Hackney, ensuring cases are progressed through the criminal justice system swiftly and effectively, whilst ensuring partners and victims are kept updated throughout the process. The Coordinator also works with key agencies to ensure the SDVC is given the most current information to assist them in making an informed decision about cases.

The Sanctuary Project: A partnership between the Police (Crime Prevention Officers), the Council, a private contractor and the London Fire Brigade to provide free tailor-made security for victims of DV at risk of homelessness (due to DV) to enable them to remain safely in their homes. The Duluth Power & Control Wheel

In 1984, staff at a Domestic Abuse Intervention Project in Minnesota documented the most common abusive behaviours or tactics that were used against women by male perpetrators. The tactics chosen for the wheel were those that were most universally experienced by those abused women. The wheel is used in a multitude of settings and makes the pattern, intent, and impact of violence and abuse visible.
